Case Types & Income Thresholds

The Federal Tax Clinic at Harvard Law Schools provides free legal representation, advice, and counsel to low-income clients with tax problems. Clients eligibility is based on case type and current income level.

We have two types of cases: Internal Revenue Service (IRS) cases & Massachusetts Department of Revenue (MADOR) cases. Your current income level is not based on how much you made during a prior year; it is based on how much you are making right now.

Do you need help with IRS?

For IRS cases, you must make less than $32,300. This amount increases by $11,350 for each person in your household who could be a dependent on your tax return. The following chart provides an overview of our income thresholds by family size.

Number of people in your household that you support + you	You must make under this amount to qualify for our services
One	$32,300
Two	$43,650
Three	$55,000
Four	$66,350
Five	$77,700
Six	$89,050

Do you need help with MADOR?

For MADOR cases, you must make less than $51,520. This amount increases by $18,160 for each person in your household who could be a dependent on your tax return. The following chart provides an overview of our income thresholds by family size.

Number of people in your household that you support + you	You must make under this amount to qualify for our services
One	$51,520
Two	$69,680
Three	$87,840
Four	$106,000
Five	$124,600
Six	$142,320
